

Challenging Relationships

Dear One,

It is good to have a friend and companion as long as you both become better people through your association. If you should become at odds over nothing more than thoughtlessness or carelessness, then your friendship will not endure. It is better not to let your mind dwell on a situation that brings you no Joy, for Joy is your main source of Happiness, Lightness, and Spontaneity. Talk it over with your friend. Do not fret. You should be exchanging good energy with a companion; otherwise, you should not spend much time together. Better to be alone and free to act spontaneously, than to be guarded and feel at odds and unable to communicate your feelings.

Do not feel let down because of miscommunications. It is unwise for you to continue relationships fraught with hostilities. It is best that you associate and align yourself only with those who will support you in every way and have the compassion to treat you with the respect you deserve.

Enlighten them by being the God Principle at work. It is wise to tell others that you are endeavoring to do the Will of your Heavenly Father by following His Requests. Then read to them the request concerning judging: Do not judge others or put them down. For this will no longer be tolerated by those who dearly Love Me, serve Me, and do My Will. I will be here to Guide you in all that you say and do concerning this matter. Be eloquent,* My Darling. Teach others My Ways, for they are My Beloved Children and truly your brothers and sisters in Spirit.
